

Tuesday, September 28, 2004

Web bostonphoenix.com

- Personals
- Hot Tix
- Band Guide
- MP3 Studio
- Best Music Poll
- Summer Guide
- The Best

Music

Bands in town

Movies

Dining

Books

Art

Clubs by night

By theater

Theater By play

By restaurant

Literary calendar

Dance

Listings:

Club directory

By movie Film

By theater

By location

Authors in town

Comedy

Pop Concerts

Specials

By cuisine

By location

Classical

TEXT SIZE

THIS WEEK

- Home
- In This Issue
- Listings
- Editor's Picks
- News & Features

IN ARTS

- Art
- Astrology
- Books
- Dance
- Food & Drink
- Movies
- Music
- Television
- Theater

CLASSIFIEDS

- Classifieds Home
- Adult
- Adult Personals
- Personals
- Ask Anything

- Letters
- Archives
- Restaurant Menus

THIS JUST IN

E-Mail This Article to a Friend

KEEPING SCORE

Dems versus their platform
BY KRISTEN LOMBARDI

When Marty Martinez first pored over the platform of the Massachusetts Democratic Party last year, the Somerville resident and progressive activist couldn't believe what he was reading. He was surprised by how liberal the party's statement of values sounds. Democrats, he discovered, officially champion such left-leaning principles as "taxes should be fair for all," "health care is a right, not a privilege," and "equal treatment" for gay and lesbian families.

"I looked at that platform," recalls Martinez, now the spokesperson for the Progressive Democrats of Somerville, "and I wondered why activists like myself would ever feel unrepresented" by Democrats on Beacon Hill. How often did elected Democrats, he and like-minded Progressive Dems wondered, fail to live up to their own party's principles?

Last Wednesday, on September 1, Progressive Dems from Somerville and Cambridge set out to answer that question by launching the "Mass Scorecard," a status report comparing the actions of sitting Democrats — specifically, their votes — to corresponding portions of the party's platform. Progressive Dems picked roughly 20 votes from the current legislative session that they say speak to the values of the Democratic Party. There was, for instance, the vote on a constitutional amendment defining marriage as a heterosexual institution. (The Democratic position according to the platform: No.) The vote to amend the state constitution to provide for universal health care. (Platform: Yes.) The vote to raise the state's income tax to 5.95 percent to offset the budget deficit. (Platform: Yes.) The list goes on and on.

Education

The idea for the Mass Scorecard emerged in June 2003, when delegates gathered at the Democratic State Convention, in Lowell, to amend the platform. At the time, some 40 Progressive Dems from Somerville and Cambridge drafted a "platform accountability amendment" calling for the creation of such a report. They collected 1000 signatures to bring the amendment to the floor, where it passed.

But the project soon met resistance. "The party leadership stalled, and wouldn't take up the project," Martinez says. When deadlines for publishing the report passed without action, Progressive Dems released it instead. The state's Democratic Party, as Martinez sees it, "is worried we're putting this out there to hurt Democrats. As long as someone says he's a Democrat that's all that matters."

Jane Lane, the spokesperson of the state's Democratic Party, insists that party officials are "not at all opposed to this concept" of indicating whether Democratic legislators voted in accordance with their party's platform. Their only concern, she explains, "was to ensure that the project be equitable and fair to all legislators." To this end, the party set down various guidelines. The Progressive Dems, she adds, "were unhappy with the protocol, and that's how it ended."

Controversy aside, the Mass Scorecard nevertheless makes for an intriguing read. On the one hand, there are Democratic legislators like State Senator Charles Shannon of Somerville, who cast his ballot with the party line 21 out of 21 times. Contrast this with the voting record of the most powerful Democrat in the state — House Speaker Tom Finneran. According to the Mass Scorecard, the Speaker has gone against his purported beliefs one-third of the time, on everything from gay marriage and universal health care to providing corporate tax relief.

All in all, Martinez notes, "Just because a politician calls himself a Democrat does not mean that he's voting for the party's beliefs."

With Constantly Updated Election and Politics News

*The Wall Street
Journal Online*
is more than JUST the Journal, online.

CLICK HERE to start your FREE TRIAL
NOW!

www.WallStreetJournal.com
Ads by Goooooole

FNX
PLAYLIST

BEASTIE BOYS - OH-CHECK IT OUT

THE KILLERS - SOMEBODY TOLD ME

VELVET REVOLVER
SLITHER

FRANZ FERDINAND
TAKE ME OUT

THE CURE - THE END OF THE WORLD

INCUBUS - TALK SHOW ON MUTE

BLINK 182 - DOWN

MODEST MOUSE - FLOAT ON

DASHBOARD CON-FESSIONAL - WINDI-CATED

THE HIVES - WALK IDIOT WALK

STORY OF THE YEAR - ANTHEM OF OUR DYING DAY

YEAH YEAH
YEAH'S - MAPS

THE STREETS - FIT
BUT YOU KNOW IT

NEW FOUND GLORY
IT'S ALL DOWNHILL FROM HERE

MORRISSEY - IRISH BLOOD, ENGLISH HEART

THE VON BONDIES
O'MON O'MON

JET - ROLLOVER DJ

PRESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES
SOME POSTMAN

ELEFANT - MISFIT

BEASTIE BOYS - TRIPLE TROUBLE

VISIT FNX.RADIO.COM

Issue Date: September 10 - 16, 2004

Back to the News & Features table of contents

E-Mail This Article to a Friend

about the phoenix | find the phoenix | advertising info | privacy policy | the masthead | feedback | work for us

Copyright © 2004 Phoenix Media/Communications Group